

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of determining crop parameters in an agricultural harvester has the steps of determining at least one crop parameter during a working process with a compacting device which is fillable with a crop probe, and using for determining the at least one crop parameter of the crop probe depending on at least one defined compression of the crop probe produced by the compacting device.